“I am an equestrian coach who has been travelling to New Zealand to conduct show jumping clinics for the past 25 years and began my association with Nga Tawa School about ten years ago.

I have watched the Nga Tawa Equestrian Academy grow and flourish. Director Libby Rayner and Deputy Director Sandy Fryatt designed and now teach, coach, and oversee a comprehensive equestrian programme for the beginner to the competitive rider.

As a parent and coach, I think the specialness of the Nga Tawa programme is the atmosphere that I see in the yards. There is a feeling of care - care for the horses and care for each other. The Academy is such a special place for Nga Tawa girls to learn, achieve, and develop self-esteem outside their academics.”
